Code of Conduct

Night Shifts aims to create an accessible, low-harm, and barrier-sensitive environment as the basis for our shared experience. We do not tolerate any form of racism, sexism, ableism, antisemitism, queerphobia, transphobia, or any other discriminatory or violent behavior. By attending the event, all visitors agree to abide by our code of conduct. Everyone participating in our program should feel comfortable and safe within this temporary shared space. Therefore, we do not tolerate any abusive, boundary-crossing, or discriminatory behavior under any circumstances and reserve the right to exclude individuals from the event for violations of our code of conduct. If you feel uncomfortable or witness abusive behavior, please contact Rosanna Graf, Lisa Klosterkötter, Gesa Troch, or Anne Meerpohl.

Visitor Information & Accessibility

General Information: The event is open to visitors aged 18 and over. The artistic interventions take place at three different venues in St. Pauli. The locations are within walking distance of one another. Exact locations will be announced at the beginning of the event. Visitors will move independently and at their own pace between the three venues.

Content & Sensory Information:
As the event takes place within the nightlife context of St. Pauli, high visitor density, a lively atmosphere, and elevated noise levels are to be expected. Some of the venues are in narrow, dimly lit spaces. Loud music and lighting effects will be used. No strobe lighting effects will be used.

Physical Accessibility: The venues are not wheelchair accessible. Two of the three locations can only be reached via narrow, long staircases leading down into basement spaces. A third venue is accessible via a few steps leading up to a raised ground floor level. If you have further questions regarding accessibility barriers at our event, please contact us via the email address below.

Language Accessibility: The event uses spoken texts in both German and English. However, all artistic interventions can also be experienced visually or sonically, so no advanced language comprehension is required in order to engage with the works. An explanatory text will be available on our website, www.night-shifts.com, in German, English, and Plain Language on the evening of the event.

On-Site Support: The three organizers of the event, Rosanna Graf, Lisa Klosterkötter, and Gesa Troch, will be present throughout the evening as "night watchwomen" and are available at any time to answer questions or provide assistance. Additionally, a team of door staff and awareness personnel will be present and approachable throughout the event.

Contact: For further questions regarding accessibility, individual needs, or access requirements, please contact us via email at info@night-shifts.com.
